Marking. Award one mark per numbered question, with no negative marking. Grammar: 22; Vocabulary: 25; Reading: 6; Listening: 6. The main paper is 53 marks in 70 minutes; Listening is taken separately. Overall total: 59. Percentage = score / 59 x 100.

 Print correction, Vocabulary D6. The question now defines assonance as repeated vowel sounds. The online wording also refers to consonants, which describes consonance. The intended answer and all three options are unchanged. No other question wording or intended answers have been changed.

Short answers. Require accurate grammar and spelling in Grammar B. Ignore differences in capitalisation. Both hyphenated and unhyphenated self-confidence are accepted in B8, matching the online key. The detailed notes show the forms required.

Grammar A

01 B had consulted

Wish + past perfect expresses regret about a past event. The doctor wishes the patient had sought help earlier. The present perfect and future perfect do not express that past regret.

02 A will have marked

The future perfect simple describes marking completed before a future deadline: by Monday. The teacher is promising a finished result, not describing a past event.

03 C to have confirmed

Hope can take a to-infinitive. The perfect infinitive (to have + past participle) emphasises completion before the end-of-week deadline. Neither an -ing form nor an unintroduced finite clause fits this gap.

04 C Having decided

The perfect participle clause (having + past participle) places the decision before the start of medical school. Jenny is the understood subject of both actions.

05 B have never been

The present perfect compares the current feeling with all earlier experience up to now. Have never been more proud means the father feels as proud as he ever has.

06 B What

What I meant means the thing that I meant. It forms the subject of a what-cleft sentence that highlights the intended meaning. That and which cannot introduce this clause in the same way.

Grammar B

The answer heading shows only the words required in the gap. The completed sentence underneath provides context; words in brackets are removed.

01 has been restricted

Access to the sports centre has been restricted since Monday due to essential building work.

Use the present perfect passive: has been + past participle. The restriction began on Monday and continues to the present. The singular subject is access.

02 being taught

My mum's a teacher, but I couldn't imagine being taught by her at school.

Imagine takes an -ing form. The subject would receive the teaching, so use the passive gerund: being + past participle. Teach has the irregular participle taught.

03 is believed

Following recent research, it is believed to be the oldest building in the whole country.

This is a passive reporting structure: it is believed to be... reports other people's current belief. The singular subject it requires is.

04 working

I want to stop working on Saturdays so I can spend more time with my family.

Stop + -ing means discontinue an activity. The speaker wants to give up Saturday work. Stop to work would mean interrupting another activity in order to work.

05 to change

If anyone can persuade her to change her mind, it's Martin.

The pattern is persuade + object + to-infinitive: persuade her to change.

06 to submit

You can't allow one person to submit the assignment after the deadline, when everyone else has done it on time.

With a named object, use allow + object + to-infinitive: allow one person to submit. A bare infinitive would fit let, not allow.

07 had they published

No sooner had they published their plan than the criticism started.

Initial no sooner triggers subject-auxiliary inversion. Use had + subject + past participle, followed by than and the later event.

08 was their self-confidence

Such was their self-confidence that they hadn't planned for any opposition.

Emphatic such ... that places was before the subject: Such was their self-confidence that... Accept both was their self-confidence and was their self confidence, as in the online key.

Grammar C

MULTIPLE CHOICE / 8 MARKS / STUDENT PAGES 2-3

01 B would open

Would + infinitive expresses the future from a past viewpoint. The opening was still in the future when the museum made its announcement. The following summer fits reported time reference.

02 B would never perform

Would never perform describes what lay ahead after the past farewell tour. It is a future-in-the-past use of would.

03 A would be arriving

Would be + -ing expresses a future expectation viewed from a past point. Her arrival was expected an hour after that night's reference point. No perfect aspect is required.

04 B were never to see

Were never to + infinitive presents a later outcome in a past narrative, often with a sense of fate. At the moment of boarding, they did not know they would never return.

05 A confidence

Confidence is an uncountable noun used in a general sense here, so it takes no article. The sentence does not identify a particular previously mentioned confidence.

06 C having it

Use the causative have pattern: have + object + past participle. The complete phrase is I'm having it redecorated, with it referring to the bedroom. The other choices omit the required object.

07 A is being

Is being + past participle forms the present continuous passive. The store is receiving the redesign now; at the moment emphasises work in progress.

08 C it was

The it-cleft pattern is it was + focused information + that-clause. It emphasises that the equipment's cost was the reason the speaker did not take up tennis.

Vocabulary D

01 B bones

Make no bones about something means express a view openly and directly, without hiding doubts or feelings. The following sentence confirms that everyone knows his opinion.

02 A alter

Alter means change or adjust. It takes the wording directly as its object. Evolve suggests gradual development; substitute normally describes replacing one thing with another.

03 B decaying

Decay means deteriorate or become damaged over time. Rust is evidence of that deterioration. Restore and refine describe improvement, not damage.

04 A rapport

Rapport is a friendly, understanding relationship. The pattern have a good rapport with someone matches the fact that the colleagues get on well.

05 C rejection

Rejection is the feeling of being refused acceptance or excluded. Not being invited to the party supplies that meaning; loyalty means faithfulness and disaffection suggests alienation or dissatisfaction.

06 B Assonance

Assonance is repetition of the same or similar vowel sounds in nearby words. Print correction: the online definition also mentions consonants; that is consonance. This paper uses the precise vowel-only definition, with the same options and intended answer B.

Vocabulary E

01 B typical

Typical means characteristic or representative of a place or group. The next sentence explains the occasions when this kind of hat is worn.

02 B concerned

Concerned that... means worried about a possible result. The late bus gives Emily reason to fear missing the beginning of class.

03 C go against the grain

Go against the grain means act contrary to a usual or expected pattern. Here Tom chooses a path against his parents' wishes. Toe the line would mean conforming.

04 B confess

05 C testimony

Give testimony means provide a witness's account, especially in court. Conviction and penalty refer to other parts of the legal process.

06 B puffs

Puffs of wind are short, light bursts of moving air. The slight movement of smaller branches supports this meaning; drizzle is light rain.

07 A chugging

Chug describes moving with a repeated low engine sound, especially a train or boat. Stroll describes walking, and flash does not fit the train's movement here.

Vocabulary F

MULTIPLE CHOICE / 6 MARKS / STUDENT PAGES 4-5

01 B fritter away

Fritter away means waste money or time in small amounts. It directly takes my pocket money as an object. Splash out normally uses on and means spend a lot on something.

02 A sales

Boost sales means increase the amount sold. A price discount is intended to encourage more purchases, rather than increase behaviour or experience.

03 B dipped

Dip means fall a small amount, matching slightly. Plummet means fall dramatically; rocket means rise rapidly, the opposite direction.

04 C resulted in

Result in + noun/-ing introduces an outcome. The adverts caused the product to sell out. Were attributed to would reverse the intended cause-and-effect relationship.

05 B market research

Conduct market research means investigate consumers and their buying habits. The question about shampoo purchases is an example of this research.

06 A volatile

Volatile describes conditions that can change suddenly or unpredictably. Moderate does not match the extreme events; steadily is an adverb and cannot modify weather conditions in this position.

05 A ascertain

Ascertain means find out or establish something with certainty. It can introduce exactly what had happened.

06 C contradictory

Contradictory means expressing incompatible accounts or claims. The two stories cannot both be believed as stated. Interchangeable would suggest either could be used in place of the other.

Reading H

DIGITAL NOMADS / 6 MARKS / STUDENT PAGES 6-7

Paragraph numbers refer to those printed beside the article. The opening standfirst is paragraph 1; the writer's first main paragraph is paragraph 2.

01 C Privileged European or North American graduates

Paragraph 2. The writer's earlier stereotype includes university education, a western background and people in their twenties working at distant beach resorts. C best gathers that profile. A adds an absence of ties that the passage does not state; B confuses working digitally with having a technology-sector job.

02 A Freedom to vary the scope and scale of work

Paragraph 2. The writer identifies flexibility as the key advantage, then illustrates it through multiple destinations and a variety of contracts. Lower living costs and special visas help attract workers, but they are not presented as the principal benefit.

03 C It provides a welcome sense of insurance.

Paragraph 3. Contractual remote-working periods allow clearer planning and greater job security. C captures that security. The writer concedes that the arrangement may be less exciting, but the overall judgement is positive rather than dismissively boring.

04 B They are keen to promote and capitalize on any skills developed.

Paragraph 4. Workers gain confidence, adaptability, cultural sensitivity and communication skills. The writer assumes employers can benefit when staff bring that experience into their roles. A reverses the loyalty relationship: the text refers to employees who are already loyal. C reduces practical benefits to a claim about appearances.

05 A Communities become less connected.

Paragraph 5. The passage directly describes a weaker sense of community identity, stability and trust when many residents stay briefly. B adds a rapid rate of rent increase that is not stated. C is a broader interpretation, while A closely matches the explicit social example.

06 B There is a need to address concerns on either side.

Paragraph 6. The writer argues for a balance between host communities and visiting workers and says nomads should contribute to their hosts. B captures concern for both sides; A and C each focus on only one part of that balance.

Listening I

PROCRASTINATION / 6 MARKS / STUDENT PAGE 8

Administration. Use insight-advanced-progress-1-5-listening.mp3 (approximately 4 minutes 29 seconds). Allow 45 seconds to read. Play the complete recording twice, with a 10-second pause between plays. Students answer while listening; the online setup has no additional timed answer window.

About these notes. The answers reproduce the stored online listening key. The commentary explains distinctions between the answer choices; it is not a transcript of the recording.

01 B It is a habit that is common despite obvious drawbacks.

The keyed contrast is between how common procrastination is and its evident disadvantages. A adds that people adopt it unconsciously, while C restricts its effects to the short term.

02 A We focus favourably on immediate events.

Present bias favours what is immediate. The keyed answer concerns a favourable focus on present events, rather than selecting only important events (B) or carefully weighing consequences (C).

03 C Most people choose immediate rather than delayed reward.

The key identifies a preference for immediate reward over a later reward. A desire for freedom (A) or more socialising (B) is a different explanation for the split between present and future selves.

04 A An anxiety about losing that impacts decision-making

The keyed definition concerns fear of loss influencing decisions. A specifically identifies losing; B and C replace that with making mistakes or regretting a choice.

05 C It provides opportunities to improve mood.

The selected benefit is an opportunity to improve mood. Time to solve complex problems (A) and perspective for planning (B) concern other possible benefits and do not match this keyed example of mental well-being.

06 B Informative and entertaining

The stored key selects informative and entertaining: it combines explanation with an engaging tone. The alternatives describe a more specialised academic register or a formal attempt at persuasion. This note reports the keyed judgement rather than quoting the recording.

Printing and use. Print the student paper on A4 at 100% / actual size. Duplex printing with long-edge binding puts the article and reading questions on facing pages. Keep the teacher key separate. The main-paper time limit excludes Listening.
