 See the detailed notes: Grammar B3 has several accepted future forms and a defensible habitual reading; Vocabulary C5 also permits a plain-noun reading; Reading 4 has a second defensible option. These notes distinguish classroom judgement from the stored online key.

Marking: one mark per numbered question; no negative marking. In Vocabulary E, all parts of the word or phrase must be correct for the mark. Main paper: 64; Listening: 6; overall: 70. Percentage = score / 70 x 100. Detailed alternatives follow.

Grammar A

01 A may visit

May + infinitive expresses an uncertain future possibility. The speaker has not booked the trip, so the present continuous would suggest a firmer arrangement than the context supports.

02 B will have handed in

The future perfect simple describes something completed before a future deadline: the assignments will be handed in before the exams. The continuous forms focus on an activity in progress.

03 C was about to say

Was about to + infinitive means something was going to happen very soon. Henry arrived just before Cathy started speaking.

04 B far too much

Money is uncountable, so use much. Far too much means an excessive amount and matches the comment about the high price.

05 A was able to convince

Was able to describes a successful achievement on a particular past occasion. Once introduces the event that made packing possible.

06 A is forever playing

The present continuous + forever is used here to complain about a repeated habit. The second sentence supplies the speaker's irritation.

07 B would affect

Would + infinitive expresses the future viewed from a past point: the inventor did not predict the later effects. The other options also use were with the singular subject invention.

08 B ought to have booked

Ought to have + past participle expresses criticism or regret about a past action that was advisable. The intended meaning is that the speaker should have booked earlier.

09 A doesn’t need to

Doesn't need to expresses lack of necessity. The second sentence allows storage in a cupboard; it does not prohibit putting jam in the fridge.

10 B mustn’t

Mustn't expresses prohibition. Don't have to and needn't mean that something is unnecessary, which would not communicate the rule about noise.

Grammar B

01 had been fixing

The past perfect continuous shows an activity continuing up to a past point. Since early that morning gives its starting point, and the grease is its visible result.

02 had already left

The past perfect simple puts Anjali's departure before Max's arrival. Place already between had and the past participle left.

03 is going to visit / will visit / is visiting

The online key accepts all three future forms: is going to visit (intention), will visit (future statement) and is visiting (arrangement). Fair marking: visits is also defensible because like every weekend establishes a regular habit.

04 have been running

The present perfect continuous describes an activity that began earlier and is still continuing. All morning and when I'm done support this meaning.

05 had not cleaned / hadn't cleaned

The past perfect refers to the earlier period when Anh Long was out. Accept had not cleaned or hadn't cleaned.

06 was trying

The past continuous describes an action already in progress when the shorter past event, her dad's arrival, occurred.

07 sweat

Active make + object takes the bare infinitive: make you sweat. Do not add to or use an -ing form.

08 a / per

Use a to mean each/every in a frequency expression. Per has the same meaning here and is also accepted by the online key.

09 am not used to having / 'm not used to having

Be used to + -ing means be accustomed to something. This sentence is about a present preference, so it is not the past-habit construction used to + infinitive.

10 did you use to visit

A past-habit question uses did + subject + use to + infinitive. After did, write use, not used.

11 to beat

Try to do means attempt an action. The sentence describes an unsuccessful effort, rather than experimenting with a method (try doing).

12 - (no article)

Use no article before a plural countable noun with a general meaning. Students should write a dash (-) in the gap.

Grammar C

Award one mark for a correct completion that preserves the meaning, retains the given word and contains two to five words. Contractions count as one word in this classroom paper. Other valid completions meeting these conditions may receive credit.

01 haven’t spoken to Elena since

05 got used to working

I gradually got used to working at night.

Get used to + -ing describes becoming accustomed to something. Got puts that change in the past. The completion has 4 words.

06 would take us swimming

When we were children, our aunt would take us swimming after school.

Would + infinitive describes a repeated past action in the childhood time frame. Take someone swimming is the required pattern. The completion has 4 words.

07 needn’t have bought

We needn’t have bought food for the journey.

Needn't have + past participle means the action happened but was unnecessary. Needn't have bought has 3 words under this paper's contraction rule.

08 had better not drive

You had better not drive in this weather.

Had better not + infinitive gives strong negative advice. Accept had better not drive (4 words) or 'd better not drive.

METHOD ACTING / 6 MARKS / STUDENT PAGES 6-7

Paragraph numbers refer to the numbers printed beside the article. Explanations identify the evidence and the distinction between the correct option and its distractors.

01 C To provide a definition of a well-known technique

Paragraph 1. The introduction explains what method acting is and how actors prepare to become their characters. It defines the technique rather than recommending it (B) or mainly explaining why directors use it (A).

02 A There are fewer acting roles for those who like method acting.

Paragraph 2. The writer's main explanation is that method actors are harder to work with and this limits their opportunities. The paragraph mentions difficulty mastering the method and effects after filming, but the writer gives greater weight to the restriction on roles.

03 B Method acting can have a negative impact on actors' personal lives.

Paragraph 3. Some actors find the method exhausting and prefer techniques that do not make a character part of their private lives. This supports a negative personal impact (B). The text does not claim other techniques are less successful (C).

04 C He needn't have prepared for this particular role so thoroughly.

Paragraph 4. The online key selects C: the writer questions whether such extreme preparation is worthwhile when audiences probably cannot tell the difference. Fair marking: A is also explicitly supported, because the actor said his preparations helped his performance. The broad question wording allows both; accept A in classroom marking. B is not supported.

05 B They have difficulty distinguishing between method and ordinary acting.

Paragraph 5. Audiences would not necessarily know whether an actor used the method or more general acting skills. Historical figures and celebrities are a possible exception; this does not mean those films are audiences' favourites (A). Noticing weaknesses does not establish that audiences focus on them too much (C).

06 B To support the argument that method acting is unnecessary

Paragraph 6. The comments criticise extreme preparation, advise actors simply to act, and describe possible harm or disruption. Together they support the argument that the method is unnecessary (B). They do not establish that most actors now refuse it (C).

Listening

EXERCISE THAT DOESN'T FEEL LIKE EXERCISE / 6 MARKS / STUDENT PAGE 8

Administration. Use the existing course-test audio: insight-upper-int-progress-1-5.mp3 (approximately 4 minutes 8 seconds). Allow 45 seconds to read; play the complete track twice, with 10 seconds between plays. Students answer while listening; there is no additional timed answer window in the online setup.

About these notes. The answers reproduce the stored online listening key. The commentary explains the distinctions between the keyed options; it is not an audio transcript.

01 B It feels too much like doing work.

The keyed distinction is that exercise feels like work. This concerns how people experience the activity, rather than a lack of time (A) or repetition (C).

02 C She only did activities that she was forced to do.

The keyed answer says her early participation came from obligation. It does not identify a preference for exercising alone (A) or a judgement about her sporting ability (B).

03 A She found out about it through someone else.

The key identifies another person as the source of her discovery. Existing skills (B) and a negative judgement about the exercise (C) are different claims.

04 B It brings back memories of his childhood.

The keyed reason is nostalgia for childhood. The general theme of exercise that feels fun does not replace Max's specific reason (B).

05 A She compared it to eating certain beneficial foods.

The answer is an analogy with beneficial food: something can be good for you without being enjoyable. Regret about her ability (B) and trying to convince herself she liked jogging (C) are different ideas.

06 B Excited about taking on a new challenge

The key identifies enthusiasm about a new challenge. Concern about safety (A) and surprise at other people's description of the activity (C) are different reactions.
